

Kentucky Foundation for Women 2017 Summer Residency Program

“Voice Lessons” with
Writer-In-Residence
George Ella Lyon

Application deadline:

March 3, 2017

Notification sent by April 21

KFW's 2017 Summer Residency Program

June 11-17, 2017

KFW's 2017 Summer Residency Program invites applications from Kentucky women writers who wish to work closely with Writer-in-Residence George Ella Lyon to develop their artistic skills. Four to six participants will have the opportunity for a week-long immersion in writing craft, voice development and community building. Through this special Residency opportunity, Kentucky feminist literary artists will spend 7 days and 6 nights at Hopscotch House to deepen their writing practice and consider strategies to expand the social change impact of their work. Selected residents will participate free of cost. Housing and a food stipend will be provided.

For more information visit www.kfw.org/hopscotch

Invitation from George Ella Lyon to “Voice Lessons”

Photo by Ann W. Olson

Do you ever feel like you can't hear your own voice? Do you sometimes sense its presence but can't bring it to the page? Do you struggle to believe in your words or to share them once they're written? Are you looking for ways to ground your writing practice and to connect it with the larger community? Come to Hopscotch House for a week of workshops, writing time, individual conferences, communal meals, and outside rambles focused on finding, claiming,